HIGH TURNOUT OF CANDIDATES FOR LOCAL BODY ELECTION

Wairoa's local body candidates are walking the talk with 15 people contesting the seven Wairoa District Council elected member positions. Nominations closed at midday last Friday with five nominations for the Mayoralty, seven nominations for the General Ward, which has three vacancies, and six nominations for the Māori Ward, which also has three vacancies.

Wairoa District Council Electoral Officer Juanita Savage said at a time when many other electorates around the country are struggling to attract nominations, it is great Wairoa people are stepping up. "Thank you to everyone who has put their name forward to represent our district. It is really impressive to have a diverse range of candidates for our voters to be able to choose from.

"This demonstrates that our local people care, and they want to be part of the process which is admirable.

"This next phase of the pre-election season is a time of excitement as candidates share their thoughts and campaigns with us."

With the nomination period now closed, voters have the next month or so to deliberate on who they would like to vote for with voting papers being posted to enrolled voters between September 16 and 21 and voting closing at midday on Saturday October 8.
